Subject: Letter of Application for Data Engineer at Stratpoint

Dear Ms. Jemima, Sir Zedrick, Sir Albert, and Ms. Marielle

I write this to reiterate my heartfelt and deeply genuine interest to be part of Stratpoint's Analytics team. Having long sought, and for a while now, work in a Data Engineering/Analytics role, ever since being an undergrad and now as a graduate, I've to the best of my ability always proactively built the projects I must to prepare for such a role, to religiously understand the concepts that underly it, writing about it on social media on what I've learned that others can learn too, and to finally test my mettle by offering my expertise through applications at numerous companies.

But in all honestly having read and learned about Stratpoint's commitment to not only providing the best of the best services in the domain of software, cloud, data and AI (with a focus on AWS), it's rank among one of the best outsourcing firms in terms of tech globally, but also in the mission of continuing to strive for its pay it forward mindset through bolstering tech education here in our country and empowering our fellow Filipino citizens with it, I was nothing short of inspired, about these already remarkable aspirations and achievements Stratpoint has already made in our time.

For a period, of time I saw technical skills and being adept them while also understanding business and business acumen as the only things that mattered in one's job search. But reading numerous companies' visions, aspirations, and their advocacies those including Stratpoint's, I realized that knowing their visions, advocacies, aspirations and whether it aligns with your own was I think just as important of a trait. And the cause of empowering our citizens and mending the talent and skills gap in order to have a better tomorrow and continuing to strive to offer the best in the domain of tech has been all the more inspiring to me, and for lack of a better word "nangarap ako" – I too dreamt before knowing of Stratpoint for our citizens most especially to be more well adept and versed to the capabilities of tech and how it could be used not only for job opportunities but also for greater causes such as for education of the youth and those without opportunity. And perhaps like many of you if given the chance, I too can effect positive change and contribute in my own small way to a cause like that of Stratpoint that truly matters.

This is because I believe that while skills and understanding business are important I believe what's even paramount more so is ones drive, fire, willingness, which I believe everyone ultimately aspires to, to make an impact in the world, contribute, and give value, to an organization they believe in and to a cause again that truly matters, one that gives fulfillment and meaning, which Stratpoint continuous to strive towards.

While I have no doubt there is no shortage of qualified applicants that may apply a role like this: above all else like my skills and my understanding business acumen, my drive of working towards not only giving the best of what I have to offer to businesses to transform them digitally but to also working for a better tomorrow for our youth using my capabilities apart from the aforementioned skills, is what I think truly separates me from the rest. And it is but a mere dream that fuels my drive to do so. So, my heartfelt respect to your organization for continuously striving towards this dream as well. And most of all a heartfelt thank you for reading this my piece and letter to your organization Stratpoint.

Sincerely,

Larry
